

Make an illustrated time line of fictional heroes.

Are there any people living or dead you consider to be superheroes? Write a biography about them?

Who created Superman? Can you find out about who created other superheroes eg. Spiderman etc.

How many fictional superheroes can you think of? Draw a map to show where they all come from.

Draw your own superhero. What does he/she look like? What special powers does your hero have?

What does a superhero eat? Devise a daily menu for your superhero.

Write an adventure story about your superhero.

Make a cake for a superhero. Write the recipe and remember to take photographs of your "super" cake

Design a home or hideout for your superhero.

My topic: Heroes and Superheroes

There are 3 activities which you must complete, these are shown in red.

Then choose 7 of the other activities - choose which you are the most interested in.

Remember

- Try to do 1 activity per week
- Be creative in your learning
- Take pride in presentation of your learning
 - ❖ use borders, mounting, flaps, foldouts etc.
- Write on to paper and stick it into your pages.
- Write in pen or pencil - don't write in felt tip.
- Bring in every Monday to be reviewed

Find out the origin of the Olympic Games.

What are the names of the UK mascots for the 2012 Olympics? Draw them and see if you can explain where their names originate

Do you know the legend of King Arthur? Research and draw his family tree.

Rewrite and illustrate the legend of St George and the Dragon.

Find the story of Rama and Sita.. Turn the story into a comic strip.

Look for newspaper articles about heroes. What makes a hero? Select your favourite one and glue it in your book and explain why you chose it.

Find out about the organisation called Hope for Heroes. Who started it and why?

Are there any local heroes? Who are they and what makes them a hero?

Can you find out about the Children of Courage awards? Do you think these children are heroes and if so, why?

